The lectures, which are open to the public, will be held in the Museum's Gartner Auditorium.

The series, entitled "The Triumphs and Transformations of Impressionism," will survey the impressionist movement from its dawn in the 1860's through its final years in the last decades of the 19th century.

Dates and titles of the lectures are:

To coincide with the lecture series, the Museum has scheduled an exhibition of prints by impressionist artists which will be on view in the Museum's educational exhibit area from January 21 through April 6.

On exhibit will be lithographs and etchings by ten artists associated with the impressionist movement, including Edgar Degas, Pierre Auguste Renoir, Camille Pissarro, Edouard Manet, Alfred Sisley, and the only American to exhibit with the impressionists, Mary Cassatt. Also represented will be works by the engraver Felix Bracquemond, who introduced the impressionists to Japanese prints and basic printing techniques, and Sir Francis Seymour Haden, an English printmaker greatly admired by French artists.

Accompanying the prints in this exhibition are explanatory texts and photographs of the artists. A slide tape on impressionist prints will be shown in the audio-visual center adjacent to the exhibit area. Also available to Museum visitors is a free descriptive leaflet with a list of the individual prints on exhibit.

The exhibition was organized by Gabriel P. Weisberg, Curator of Art History and Education, and Janet L. Mack, Assistant Curator of Exhibitions.
